Indianz.com… Santee Sioux Tribe working to bring more attractions to casino

THURSDAY, AUGUST 21, 2014

The Santee Sioux Tribe of Nebraska is hoping to turn its modest casino into a destination resort.

The tribe is building an 18-hole golf course and club house for the Ohiya Casino that’s due to open next year. The addition comes on the heels of an enclosed swimming pool and spa at the 61,000 square-foot facility.

“The dreams of my grandfather have come to life,” Chairman Roger Trudell told The Yankton Press & Dakotan. “We are proud that we are doing this. We are making our mark in the area. We have big-city folks here to check out northeast Nebraska.”

The tribe employs 90 people at the casino, up from nine in its earlier days. An expansion debuted in February 2013. Get the Story: Santee Sioux Gamble Pays Off (The Yankton Press & Dakotan 8/21)

Thoughts from the End of Summer... by Lance Morgan

Trashed
This year Ho-Chunk, Inc. mailed our annual report to every P.O. Box in Winnebago. Sadly over a hundred were simply thrown away or piled up in the Post Office. We will not be mailing them next year and will just leave some in the Post Office for the curious tribal member.

The trashing of the Annual Reports is a little disheartening. I always used to hear that people didn’t know what was going on with Ho-Chunk, Inc., so we have made huge efforts to get our info out there. I have also been writing about what we face in the tribal paper all the time—something that is very rare in a corporate environment. But if a person chooses to be willfully uninformed then that is their choice, but maybe they should hold their uninformed criticism down too then.

For those of you tribal members not on the reservation, you can download a copy at www.hochunkinc.com

Dividend Time

Over the years, there has been a lot of research done on what makes tribal companies successful. One of the reasons tribal business’s failed in the past was because too much money was taken out, which limits the company’s ability to grow or even pay their bills sometimes. So when Ho-Chunk, Inc. started the Tribe allowed the company to reinvest all of its profits for the first 5 years. After 5 years, the dividend was set at 10 percent of profits and then it gradually rose to 20 percent.

On August 25th, Ho-Chunk, Inc. presented the Tribe with its dividend for 2013. The dividend amount was a little over $1.2 million dollars or 20 percent of the 89.1 million in Net Income—both records by the way.

Over the last several years the Tribal Council has allowed Ho-Chunk, Inc. to use some portion of the dividend to fund community projects, like the down payment assistance, the 10 elder housing units, streets and sewers, and the about to be built Live/Work apartment buildings. Last year, the Tribe allocated about 1/3 of the dividend to build the Live/Work building and adding some money to the down payment assistance fund. So the check we presented to the Tribe was actually for a little over $1.2 million. Either way, it is a lot of money.

Something to keep in mind is that the rest of the profits are reinvested right back into our company and our community. This process has evolved into a system that has created 100’s of sustainable jobs, allows the company to continue to grow rapidly, and has also resulted in steady growth of the dividends to the Tribe—all seems like sensible long-term government to me.

I think we lose perspective on just how remarkable creating a non-gaming company of our size and success really is amongst tribes. Winnebago is the exception, not the rule. All you have to do is visit a few of the reservations in our area to see that there are still a lot of issues we all face.

Our success is great, but really what is does is give us so many more options for growing our community. We have already won in some ways and as long as we don’t mess it up we can expect Ho-Chunk, Inc. to be contributing jobs and dividends to the Tribe 20 or even 50 years from now. All the hard work of creating an entity of scale has been done and now we just need to be smart and make good decisions to keep the momentum going.

All you have to do is look around and see that the Tribe’s decision to start and support Ho-Chunk, Inc. 20 years ago was indeed a wise one. If you want to know more about what we do, maybe there are a few annual plans in the trash still down at the post office! No I am not bitter about that at all. Ha

MY LITTLE REFLECTION

Already it is time for School to start again for another year. It was wonderful to see smiling young faces. The Students looked happy to be back in school.

Our school started on Friday August 14, 2014. On the same day, Fr. Dave announced that the Indian corn is ready to harvest. There was a lot of excitement on the campus.

As I was looking at the piles of corn, I was thinking, we are very blessed to have great harvest but where do we get the workers.

As we were sitting there shucking corn, we came across many different colors, shapes, textures and different stages of growth. Someone said, “its like having Christmas—opening presents. We do not know what is inside until we open it.” Some corn is very immature, having Christmas—opening presents.

I was amazed at how the nature of corn is so much like human beings. We humans appear different, tall and short, dark and light, fully grown and less fully grown not only outwardly but inside as well, emotionally and spiritually. We do not really know the other person until we really get to know the person deeply, as we do not know what we will find until we peel off the corn shell. Until we take time to share our own stories, pains, sorrows, joys, and hopes, we may never fully know the other person, even those so called friends and family. Unless we share deeply we would not find beauty in each person and share that beauty we have inside because it is most likely deeply hidden within us. We are so good at covering up and build layers upon layers that it will take us a long time to peel them off and to find out how we really are.

This is my second year of working on corn. I must say it is going a lot better this second time around. The end of our harvesting last year, I mastered how to do the art of spooning. It is going very smoothly now. I even try to teach someone else how to do it. Oh, yes, I still complained about the hot weather, and the blister, callus on my hands. I said, “my thumb would not be the same” and someone said, “now you have an Indian corn thumb.” As we gathered around, enjoying camaraderie, we laugh and make fond memories.

While we are doing corn, we pray that all those people who will be eating this corn will be blessed. Right now our thoughts and prayers are with those who have lost love ones to death. We also pray for the souls of the dead that they may rest in peace. There were four funerals in town this week.

No matter what shape or color, perfect or imperfect we are, we all have purpose in life. In God we are all precious and special. We all have an important role to play to make this world a kinder and better place to live. Corn and flowers are beautiful but we, each one of us, are far more important than anything else on this earth.

God made everything beautiful especially human beings.

May God bless you and your families, until next time.

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

“Who doesn’t want it all?”

To directly answer this question, most people do not want to have it all. People would rather have it now than to live according to God’s ways. To paraphrase the words from a popular song, “if doing this is wrong, than I don’t want to be right,” is the attitude of most.

Often people are led to believe that they can live any which way now and God will accept them into paradise after they pass from this life. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Who suffers from one’s lack of self-control? Family, including children, parents, brothers and sisters; plus friends, neighbors, co-workers and about everyone one comes into contact with is robbed of the joys of life.

Who really wants it all? The child of God has a proper respect for Him and for His creation. Including each and every person. The child of God is willing to allow God’s Spirit to lead him or her down life’s path. The child of God is one who has been baptized in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, and who places his or her trust in the saving work of Jesus.

King David’s son Solomon wrote the following words: “My son, do not forget my teaching, and let your heart keep my commands, because they will add length of days, years of life wholeness to you.” To know the teachings of God, both the gracious offer of forgiveness as well as His demands to keep His commands, one needs to be a student of God’s Word. God promises to bless the lives of those who do so with a wholeness of life. In other words, the child of God will be content no matter how little or how much one has in this world.

Solomon continues: “Do not allow mercy and truth to leave you. Fasten them around your neck; write them on the tablet of your heart. Then you will find favor and good sense in the eyes of God and humans.” Mercy is found, not in a God who ignores sin, but rather in a God who punishes sin. For the child of God, Jesus has received his or her punishment. For all others, they will one day suffer the consequences for their own actions. The child of God will have it all in heaven, while the child of the Evil One will end up with nothing but the agony of being separated from God and His love.

Finally Solomon writes: “Trust in Yahweh with all your heart, and do not rely on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make straight your paths. Do not consider yourself wise. Fear Yahweh, and turn away from evil. Then your body will be healed, and your bones will be refreshed.” [Proverbs 3:1-8 from the Concordia Commentary series]

The one who follows the temptations of the Evil One, the ways of the world and their own flesh relies on their own understanding. That one rejects the truth and falls again and again for the temporary and fleeting ‘joys’ of this world.

The child of God allows God’s Spirit to have control of his or her life. This brings blessings of body and soul in this life and in the next. These blessings extend to family, friends, neighbors and all those whom he or she comes in contact with. The child of God has it all by the grace of God.

Come and receive God’s blessings that He offers each Sunday at Jesus Our Savior Lutheran Church: Sunday school at 10 a.m. followed by Divine Service at 11.

Letter to the Editor…

“The Pearly Gates”

I have noted in my own paper “The Winnebago Indian News” space is given to both the Catholic and Protestant preachers and that no mention is ever made to what the Indian people believed before the white people brought their God to this country. The Catholics and the Protestants say God is a white man with a beard and that he created heaven and earth six thousand and five hundred years ago and that he “God” gave them 10 Commandments which men must obey or men will be cast into a “Lake of Fire forever.” That you must humble yourself before him, “God” and his son and his Son’s mother and offer them money and this is the path to paradise, where you will pass the pearly gates and walk on streets of gold and live in an ivory palace. This is not an Indian heaven, our heaven is green grass, sweet air, summer rain, laughing children, mother earth, a family who loves you. Our Great Spirit, “Gitche Manitou” was here long before the white man came. Believe what you will but fear should not be a part of it.

Thank You…

Hello All

I would like to send extend a great appreciation and heart felt thank you to everyone, my family, and relatives for being with us on brother Vern Smith’s last memorial dinner. Words can’t describe how your prayers, support, hugs, laughter and love were shown. Thank you to my brother Larry, the community, cooks, servers, and those that helped in many other ways and those who also shared great stories that we’ll all remember.

Also a very special thank you to those singers who sang the flag song, and those who folded his flag. It shows how much respect and honor you have for him.

My family and I are very grateful to have a community like this helping. It shows how the wonderful people of Winnebago can come together to help one another out when in need of prayers, blessings, and healing.

Always,
We-Huh Chamberlain and family.

“Soccer players have fun”

Soccer is a sport where they seem to be very active. This could be something that parents encourage their children to play and practice every day. This could be something to help prevent diabetes. Parents must get them to practice everyday.

If all the children were to start playing soccer, it could be the start in the decline in the number of diabetics.

Too many fat guys around here. Just kidding.

“Winnebago Indian Drum Groups”

New young Indian drum groups, Winnebago’s could buy CD’s of the popular Indian drum groups and learn from them. Practice all year. Maybe some experienced singers could help and encourage them. I hope that some day a young Winnebago drum group could win first place. Win and get that $10,000.00 at their own Homecoming Celebration. This is a steep climb. It is a doable.

“Where does the idea of Executive Privilege come from?”

It’s a principle based on the constitutionally mandated separation of powers—the idea that the executive branch, Congress and the courts operate independently of each other. The concept of Executive privilege dates at least to 1792, when Congress was probing St. Clair’s defeat. A disastrous battle against American Indians that cost the lives of hundreds of U.S. soldiers. Washington and his cabinet decided the President had the right to refuse to turn over some documents if disclosing them would harm the public. In the end, Washington gave lawmakers what they sought. But the idea that later became known as executive privilege took root.

Greetings all my friends and relatives.

My name is Reva E. DeCora, I am 4/4 Hochunk, my wak shik name is Ho di pi ga, which means “good in all levels of life,” my name was given to me in the ke go. Also born and raised in Winnebago by my parents Frank Ewing and Geneva White Bear Ewing.

Right now I serve as an elder Judge for the Traditional Wellness Court, on the Alcohol Advisory board, Native American ICWA board member for the Siouxland DHS, Group Home committee member and I am employed with the HoChunk Language Program.

One of my main concerns is we need to bring back our Hochunk teachings and language. We need to continue to use all avenues to reserve our language. There are many issue’s where our people are concerned, always a housing shortage, job shortage, enrollment issue’s. I commend the Tribal Council and HCI for doing what they have done to address these issue’s.

I am a Hochunk warrior clan member and will uphold all my duties as such. I am available to speak with anyone on any concerns you may have, my phone number is 402 922-2750.

I am campaigning and would appreciate your vote on September 3, 2014.

PROGRAM UPDATE: The Whirling Thunder Wellness Program (WTWP) and Ho-Chunk Hope: A Diabetes Free Future Program (HCHP) will be merging into one facility around October 2014. HCHP will occupy the back office portion where Finance used to be. The old HCHP portion of the building will be taken over by the Tribal Court. The move will be a change in that you can find the both the WTWP and HCHP staff under one roof. The clinical portion of the Diabetes Program will still be housed at the hospital in the Health Department section. This change will be good in that it will allow myself to better oversee the functions at the gym and the sharing of resources. We will be starting a new Diabetes Prevention Class with intake on Wednesday, October 8, 2014 in our new location. So if you wish to join this 16-session class come down to where Finance used to be and sign-up. There is a short questionnaire and measurements that need to be done. You can pick-up a class schedule. The class is open to anyone but especially if you were told you have “Prediabetes” or looking to lose some weight. We are unsure of what our phone number will be but you can always call (402) 878-3187 and be transferred to us. Watch for more information as the time approaches.
